Rules and Order of Debate

Business of the House; Scope of discussion on Motion to give priority to Government business, &c. July 11, 141, 142, 145

Any Case of perjury before a Committee of the House is an offence which constitutes breach of Privilege upon which the House could immediately take action. The matter should be put on the Paper so as to draw special attention to it; i.e., namely with a line separating it from the other Orders of the Day. As it is a question of Privilege, names of Committee can be proposed immediately, though possibly that course may be objected to if the House thinks proper July 15, 414, 415

Report stage; Scope of discussion; Operation of the Closure Rule July 17, 640, 644

Motion for Adjournment of Debate (Light Railways [Ireland] Bill). Refused because of its abuse of the Rules of the House July 19, 887

On Question that Bill be read 3° an hon. Member can move rejection of Bill, but not to amend it July 23, 1087

There are several instances in which Orders of the Day and Notices lower down on the List than others have been taken first on ground of Privilege July 23, 1089

Discussion of Clauses inadmissible on Motion to Re-Commit, July 24, 1185

It is irregular, after the House has ordered a limited Return for a special purpose, for a Member of the Government to add to the return, of his own Motion, matter extraneous to the Motion passed by the House and giving an entirely different character to the Return July 30, 1717

Instructions to Committee are out of order when it is not necessary to instruct Committee in a matter they have already power to deal with July 30, 1725

It is a consequential Motion, to move to refer a Bill to a Select Committee, the Bill having been before the Examiner who has decided that it comes within the Standing Orders. There is no other Committee to which it can be referred July 30, 1789
